IMAGINE the feelings of CARL SCHURZ as he made a speech before the Colorado republican convention which passed a resolution indorsing GRANT for the presidency and pledging him the six votes of the "Centennial State" in the national republican convention! SCHURZ says that if GRANT is nominated he will stump the country against him.

HAVES, DEVENS, KEY, SCHURZ, THOMPSON, EYARTS, SHERMAN and McCRARY have been scattered all over the country for the past few weeks making political stumpaperches and in other ways illustrating the heunties of civil service reform. The gitted Rogers, however, seems to have been eminently successful in holding the country up by the tail.

With no purpose of writing an

It was not my fortune to be among his intimate personal friends, or to be in any way closely connected with any of them; but I feel it to be due to his memory to state the cuavications with which he impressed me, when he first came to Fort Wayne as the chief engineer of the Wabash read. He was at that time (1853) apparently about twenty-five years of age, and, as I thought then and think now, the best-looking man, and of the mobilest bearing and presence anywhere to be seen. His physique was formed on the perfect hardout when he went abroad in the street, more certainly drewafter him theeyes of hystanders than did Warren Colburn But after all it was the strength at of hystanders than did Warren Colburn But after all it was the strength and vigor of his intellect rather than the charming grace of his manner, strong as this was, that most impressed those who had anything to do with him. He seemed always equal to an emer-gency. He could do more useful things, and do them all well, with less apparance effort than any new Lever things, and do them all well, with less apparent effort than any man I ever knew. Standing among the foremost of his own profession, if not the very foremost in it, he seemed at the same time to be the peer of the ablest in most of the others also. Talk with him of any construction and before you knew of it, he would, without other implements than his pocket poneil and a slip of paper, give you a fair working sketch of it. Associate him with what men you would his was the mind that guided or led them all—the power behind the throne, greater than the throne itself. He seemed never to forget anything greater than the thrane itself, He seemed never to forget anything. #### Our History.

On the eve of Kingman Bros. clos ing their labors here-to the extent of gleaning the material for their his tory—every order, association, church or institution, not having furnished data for their record, should certain-ly do so at once. We are all interdata for their record, should certainly do so at once. We are all interested to have the history of our county full and complete—a local encyclopedia, in fact. These gentlemen are desirous and determined to make it such, providing they can secure, or have furnished the clean detail of facts. Nor can too much be said by way of encouragement for the illustrating features. In this respect execution of so excellent a character being insured, and in connection with our home history, so therough und important, ought certainly to be ample inducement to all our representative men and families.
